

Seeking Investor(s) / Chairperson

Pollimath is a privately owned Sri Lankan technology startup specializing in developing applications for the Android mobile-phone operating system. Their flagship product "Polls" was launched in Google's Android Market in December 2008, and has since gained momentum counting 2000 downloads and positive user feedback. Learn more at <http://www.pollimath.com>.

The founders, two well recognized Sri Lankan technology professionals, were so encouraged by the user response that they proceeded to develop a roadmap for the product and aspire to take Pollimath to commercial success as a Company. The Pollimath vision covers two domains:

Vertical; Polling and Surveys

Horizontal; Android Mobile-Phone Application Development

The founders are on the lookout for an established senior technology leader who is seriously looking to diversify her company portfolio, to invest in Pollimath and give it a financial standing. This would be in return for a major shareholding / Chairpersonship and a long-term commitment from the founders to making Pollimath a successful enterprise.

The following qualities are a prerequisite for this position:

1. A broadminded, fair-minded, rational and scientific thinking personality.
2. A keen interest in the latest global trends in software development in general and a belief in the vast potential for mobile applications in particular.
3. Experience in building technology companies or investing in technology companies. Or at least a strong financial background with a deep interest in technology investment.
4. Financial prowess to make an investment sufficient to run a software company from Sri Lanka employing a very small team of engineers until profitability (~2 years).
5. Availability for regular consultation and guidance, and participation in the venture at a consistent level.

Country of citizenship, nationality, gender etc is immaterial. Interested candidates please drop a note stating interest and a brief professional summary to info@pollimath.com. Pollimath will be in touch with shortlisted candidates only.